Team Member Spotlight

Renata Nagel joined the firm in March 2018. She is a paralegal in the PIP arbitration department. She directly supports attorney Robert Gibson and handles a broad spectrum of matters involving the firm's health care provider clients in the PIP No-Fault arbitration arena.

Are You Treating Remotely?

Due to the recent COVID-19 environment, have you made the necessary accommodations to continue seeing & treating existing and new patients? Many of our clients on the personal injury side convey concerns about treating with their current provider - particularly those that have no alternative but to been seen in-office. If you're offering telemedicine services through a patient's computer or smartphone, we would like to know. Many of our injured clients need e-consultations, home therapy plans, e-scribed medications, all in the comfort of their homes. Telemedicine visits allow our injury clients to meet with doctors 'face to face' remotely, reducing their risk of infection and calms natural anxiety about having to travel.

Email us and let us know if you're set up for telemedicine and how our Client Success Representative from our Injury Litigation Practice can go about scheduling same.

Recovery

Judd Shaw Injury Law resolved a claim for $76,500.00 on behalf of a hospital. The insurance carrier denied payment for spine surgery based on the allegation the services were not medically necessary. Judd Shaw Injury Law established the surgery was reasonable and related to the motor vehicle accident.
